He values sincerity and purity of principle above everything. Let each be taught to work for others, by practical labor for souls just where he is.

There is too much hovering ground our institutions; too much ease-loving. And

It must be defined in clear, sharp lines before the people.

Those connected with this work must also be under the supervision of God, else an order of things entirely contrary to the light of His word will be established. Every institution that bears the name of Seventh-day Adventist is to be to the world as was The Publishing Ministry in Egypt, and as were Daniel and his fellows in Babylon.

Numberless words need not be put upon paper to justify what speaks for itself. As the publications of Satan and his agents are increasing, their power is growing, and what we do to get the truth before others must be done quickly.
